INTRODUCTION

Hello,

My name is Kathy Thompson and you are about to literally change your outlook on your relationships. This little e-book can help you score with your spouse/mate/partner--and SCORE BIG! I want you to keep an open mind and have fun with this. Because this is a whole new approach to your relationship. Something you never heard of. That's why I want you to keep an open mind. AND BRING A MIRROR! Go ahead, I'll wait----- Ready! We are going to do this with FACE READING!

Don't laugh--- because it does work!

Your face is a road map of your mind. Your face shows your personality, strengths, weaknesses.

FACE READING is easy and a simple method of understanding yourself and others. Knowing the personality behind the face, you can approach your partner according to their personality. Understanding, accepting, and relating to basic differences in personality is the key to better communications and relationships with everyone in your life.

PART 1.

All right--let's find out--- ARE YOU TWO COMPATIBLE?

"Birds of a feather stick together." It is a familiar true expression. Notice what you have in common with your friends, similar interests plus similar features. There will be less adjusting to do when couples have similar features.

Thin skinned people (skin hangs on face) are sensitive, gentle, and have fine qualities. They respond quickly whether it is a man or woman. Thick skinned people (firm tight skin) are hardy, vigorous, durable, genuine, rough. The two are not compatible. Keep this in mind during dating, marriage, and sex.

The narrow face has little confidence, is sensitive, timid, shy. The broad face is confident, bold, ambitious, and courageous. They are not compatible.

Keep this in mind during the relationship. Small eyes, small mouth, and small noses are self-contained, self-centered, quiet, tight, introverts who bury their emotions. Large eyes, large mouth, large noses are out-going, like people, generous, emotional.

Can you imagine these two types as a couple? No, they are not compatible. Knowing these types can help you determine whether someone will be compatible or hinder your own vitality. Choose someone who will complement you, giving you meaning and a better life.

People enjoy doing what they are built to do, and harmonious relationships exist when they are with like people. The best way to win a battle is never to have one. Adjust your reactions to the situations and the reactions of your spouse/partner.

Criticalness breaks up more relationships than anything else. And it is usually over money or the children. The couple is still in love, which is why the break up causes so much heartache and pain. You have to be a friend before you can be a sweetheart or lover. Try to make a list of your partner's traits, then do three things they will like.

5 - BASIC FACE SHAPES

*ROUND FACE - adaptable, flexible, witty, diplomatic, wealthy, people person

*SQUARE FACE - strong willed, strength, stubborn, slow thinker, works for security

*LONG FACE - poise, charmers, image maker, fortunate, born leaders

*TRIANGULAR FACE (wide forehead & pointed chin) - honest, integrity, ambitious, idealistic, sensitive, spiritual

*BLUNTED TRIANGLE FACE (narrow forehead & wide jaw & chin)- vitality, out-going, active, restless, adventurous

If either of you is a combination, you take personality traits from both.

COMPATIBLE

PART 2

Well, how did you do with your assignment? I'm interested in knowing how you did. How did your partner react? Have you told him/her what you were doing?

This is going to get wilder. Stick with it. Be sure you have your mirror handy!!! I'll wait. Ready---

DO YOU HAVE A SEXY GROOVE?

The GROOVE from your nostrils to the upper lip is also known as the philtrum. It shows productivity and sexuality, both in the procreative processes of life, and also in the creative and productive areas of work. It is the connecting channel from the nose, representing the male sex organ, to the mouth, representing the female sex organ.

>>DEEP & LONG - sensuality, lavish production, long life (1" long = 100 years)

>>WELL FORMED - long-lasting sex life and many children are possible

>>FLAT OR SHALLOW - not interested in sexual activities

>>FLAT OR POORLY FORMED - not productive in business

>>DEEP, WELL SHAPED - productive in business

>>FLARED (at bottom) - "best" for productivity, sexual energy, several children, good metabolism

>>NARROWING - if shallow to, it restrains productivity, mild fertility, moderate sex drive, one child

>>STRAIGHT & NARROW - restricted in love life & productivity, 1-2 children

>>FLAT/DISAPPEARING - not productive, shows diminishing life force in later years.

ASSIGNMENT FOR YOU:

1. Without telling him/her, check out your partner's groove. Who has the sexier groove? You or your partner?
2. See if you can determine how many children you can have. You have to combine both of yours.

PART 3

Well, how are you doing so far? If you have any questions, please email at: faces@kathycommunicates.com

Is your relationship getting better? Is your partner looking at you strangely? Well----he/she will be even more surprised with the tips I have for you now. You don't need a mirror today. Use these tips and you will score big!

12 TIPS TO IMPROVE YOUR RELATIONSHIPS

Here are some valuable hints to try with your partner.

1. If your partner's lower eye lids straighten out, they are tuning you out. Start over.
2. If your partner has a small mouth, be brief, concise, and to the point.
3. If your partner has a long straight nose, be clear, logical, and stick to the facts.
4. If your partner has a turned-up (ski jump) nose, they are people who respond to emotion. Show them how good they will feel, or how good it will make your partner else feel.
5. If your partner has an arched (hook) nose, they appreciate beauty and creative new approaches. Be willing to listen and to appreciate their ideas and creative solutions. They like to have others implement their ideas.
6. If your partner has high round pencil-thin eyebrows, they need reassurance. They want to be above reproach. Sincere compliments will pave the way. Don't rush them. They may be self-conscious.

7. If your partner has eyes that slant up, they are optimists. Show them how great it will be. They expect everything to work out well.

8. If your partner has a mouth that turns down, they are wary of what others tell them. It will be helpful to make a very balanced pitch by pointing out a few flaws or showing other alternatives to what you want. Your unexpected candor will help gain their trust.

9. If your partner has a bigger upper lip, it's important to be authentic. These people connect less to what you say and more to who you are. A slick proposal may sound phony and they can quickly spot deception. Relax and be yourself.

10. If your partner has angled/shaped curved eyebrows, ask for their opinion and how you can assist them. Let them know their opinions are important. Allow them to feel in control.

11. If your partner has eyes that slant down, they are looking for problems. Don't be too enthusiastic, and refrain from being jovial. To them life is serious.

12. If your partner has a diamond shaped face, you must get to the point, especially if they also have high placed ears. They don't have time to waste and can be very impatient.

ASSIGNMENT FOR YOU:

1. Try these tips with not only your partner, but family, friends, co-workers, boss, clients/partners, anyone.

2. Pick out traits of your partner and speak to them.

Now you can tell your partner your secret of why and how your relationship is going so smoothly.
